

Break Through

the Competition with the Certified Professional in Supply Management® (CPSM®)

What can you do to break through the competition? Use the globally relevant Certified Professional in Supply Management® (CPSM®) certification to break through barriers in your supply chain career.

The Institute for Supply Management™ (ISM) created the CPSM® to give you a way to show your dedication and expertise in global supply management without using any words. CPSM® — These four letters signify you have cross-functional skills that enable you to lead your organization through the twists and turns of the global economy.

The multidimensional expertise demanded by the CPSM® give you a macro perspective of strategic sourcing, cultural awareness, risk compliance issues, organizational global strategy, logistics and sustainability. Knowledge in areas such as finance, purchasing and benchmarking of global suppliers is also covered in the exams. The integrated skill set required to achieve this certification in areas like commodity management, contract negotiations and supplier relationship management allow you to continually evolve and drive value in every link of the supply chain.

As a CPSM®, you have the potential to earn more (ISM 2012 Salary Survey) and have the capacity to effectively manage a global supply chain, whether you work in the nonmanufacturing or manufacturing sector.

For significantly less money and time than other professional development opportunities, you can boost the effectiveness of your practical work experience and education by becoming a CPSM®. Use the shorter, cost-effective and more manageable time frame to break through barriers in your career. Most candidates complete the program for about US$1,100 in six to 12 months. Increase your marketability now, not a few years from now.

Globally relevant, the CPSM® defines you as a supply management professional around the world. Since its debut in May 2008, ISM boasts CPSM®s in more than 30 countries, with testing centers in more than 200 countries.

As an added benefit that increases your global marketability, ISM has reciprocity agreements with other organizations outside the U.S. Visit www.ism.ws/certification for eligibility requirements.

“The CPSM® set me apart and was a factor in me being promoted to a new position. It opened my eyes to the parts of supply management that I do not deal with on a daily basis and gave me many more tools in my toolbox. Coworkers come to me as a resource. They saw how I increased my knowledge, as well as the credibility the CPSM® gives me with them and our customer base. Obtaining my CPSM® and the continued training to keep it has been a real win-win situation for me.”
